BATTLE SCENES.

War as the Soldier Saw It---Stripped of Its Glery.

in the Hell Which Visits Earth for a Time.

leo. F. Williams' "Bullet and Shell." There is an embarrassment of riches in quoting from this book. We have only space or a few extracts, which serve to show excellence of the author's style. Of the battle scenes one of the best is the following, which lescribes the effect of musketry at Chancelmish the troops at work, for the ground was wored by a dense white smoke, the line of eastworks being marked only by a fierce and angry light playing through the sulphurous vapor. It was the constant flash from thousands of muskets and so continuous was the fusilade that the flame never entirely died away. As we looked a brighter, blinding light appeared for an instant in the field, and I knew that one of the ammunition wagone had been set on fire by a Confederate shelt. The air was a moment after filled with a perfect cascade of fragments. The body of a man rose among the flame and smake enveloping the vehicle and then capie tumbling headlong to the ground. The horses attached to an empty wagon near us took fright, dashing wildly into the woods, their progress only boing stopped by the trees, while the illtated driver was hurled from his seat and killed. Still there was no slackonfated driver is the, depicting the last hopes of a confederate victory.

"As yet no Federal musketry had broken out, our veteraos knowing too well the value of every bullet in a crisis like this. Still the assaulting lines continued to march on, until it seemed, from where I was standing that the leading one touched the breastworks along our center. Then and only then, a vivid flash spring from the earth, followed by a sharp ruttle as the Federal skirmish line opened fire. The volley had no apparent effect on the Confederates, who continued to advance steadily, sweeping the skirmishers before them like chaff in the wind. A minute later a deafening crash of musketry broke upon the ear and we knew that the main line had opened fire. Despite the sunlight, the flame from our men's muskets could be distinguished as it played to and fro along Cemetery ridge. Then for the first time the Confederate line seemed to waver; but only for an instant, for it soon rallied, and, as if by one common impulse, dashed itself like a mighty wave against the wall of steel before it. The Federal artillery on the higher ground behind our infantly now tore the enemy's ranks with a storm of iron balls until it seemed that none could stand be-on the higher ground behind our infantry now tore the enemy's ranks with a storm of iron balls until it seemed that none could stand before them and live. But the troops under Longstroet had gained an impetus which carried them clear up to and at intervals into our lines. For twenty minutes the terrible hand-to-hand struggle continued, and I saw by the sudden movements of Hancock's corps that his line had been pierced and broken. It was, however, soon reformed; and, although the second line of the Confederates joined and strengthened the first, our defense was too fierce and stubborn to be overcome. Finally the attacking force quivered and a moment

IN THE HARBOR

[Longfellow.]

When I compare
What I have lost with what I have gained,
What I have missed with what attained,
Little room do I find for pride.

I am aware

How many days have been idly spent;

How like an arrow the good intent

Has fallen short or been turned saide.

But who shall dare
To measure loss and gain in this wise?
Defeat may be victory in disguise;
The lowest ebb is the turn of the tide. BETTING ON A CERTAINTY.

How a Sharper Overreached Himself. Harper's Magazine.

In the British army in India betting among the officers often runs to an extreme of vice that is sometimes fearful to contemplate. Perhaps it is no worse than in club life in London, where the most amusing as well as tragical stories are told of the enrious bets that are made. Betting on a certainty is held to be unfair, unless the avowal is distinctly made, so that no undue advantage is taken. An officer in the army had imported for his private apartments a new and beautiful mahogany table. A day or two after it had arrived and had been duly installed in his quarters, a brother officer, a great swell and very unpopular, dropped in familiarly, and greatly admired the beautiful table. The owner was shaving himself at the glass with his back to his visitor-Colonel Brown-but continued the conversation until the colonel withdraw, the conversation until the colonel withdrew, the latter remarking flat he hoped soon to have his legs under that elegant mallogany.

The owner of the table, whom we must call Major Jones, made up a little dinner party in the course of a few days, and Colonel Brown was one of the number. It was natural that the new table should be the subject of remark, and Brown, who affected to be a comousseur in all matters, said the table was perfect, with one occupation.

in all matters, said the table was perfect, with one exception.

Jones—And pray what is that, colonel?

Brown—It is just a little too lite.

Jones—Do you think so? How high would you suppose it to be?

Brown—I presume it is the usual height, just thirty—six inches, and it ought to be less than that by at least balf an inch.

Jones—That is the exact height, thirty-five and a half inches, not thirty-six as you suppose.

uppese. Brown—Pardon me. I am certain it is three Brown—raron me. I am certain it is office feet high; I will make you a bet on it. Jones—You will lose if you do, for I give you notice that I know the exact beight to half an inch, and if I bot I shall bet on a dead cer-only boing stopped by the trees, while the illfated driver was hurled from his seat and failled. Still there was no slackering in the murderous musketry, the struggle increasing in fury until the woods in which the opposing lines were fighting actually caught fire. A blinding smoke soon covered the whole field and penetrated the entire forest.

Among the trees beyond where the wagens
had been wrecked two or three dozen coatiess entgeons were at work, their arme hare to the shoulder, all busy at their horrid task of amputation. Inde tables had been erected in irregular rows, and on each lay a mutilated soldier, losing a part of his shattered and bloeding body. Groans and piteous criesrosounded in these forest shambles. It seemed as if hell itself had come on earth for a time."

The finest obapters of the book are given to Gettyshurg and the Wilderness. The great battle in Pennsylvania, which turned the fids of the robellion, is described in detail, and one of thosuper's passages which sit the blood is this, depicting the famous charge of Longstreet, on which hung the last hopes of a cont, our veterans knowing too well the value of overy bullet in a cricis like this. Still the assaulting lines continued to march on,
until it seemed, from where I was standing,
that the leading once touched the breastworks along our ceater. Then and only then, a vivid flash syrang from the carth, followed by a sharp rattle as the Federal skirmish line opened fire. The volley had no apparent of feet on the Confederates, who continued to advance steadily, sweeping the skirmishors before them like chaff in the wind. A munic later a deafening crash of muskery broke upon the ear and we knew that the main line line and fire and proper in the serious charge.

Jones—You will lost I shall bet on a dead certainty.

Brown—I am juste so uncled the alter was evite that the king on a certainty also; my eyo never deceives me. I will lay on a hundred or a thousand pounds that thus its lob; as mis that that him is table is thir

Forster and Parnell. T. P. O'Connor in New York Sun, First, in physique the two men are abso intely different. Porster has the heavy build of an English navy; Parnell the thin, apparently delicate, but strongly nervous organiza tion of an American. Indeed, in looks and in character Parnell appears to me a singularly zation. He has a pale but perfectly clear complexion. The delicate features are "carved, not moulded." His thin frame conceals nerves not moulded." His thin frame conceals nerves of steel. So, also, in character and purpose if Parnell has any vanity, nobody has ever been able to discover r. As I have before written, popular demonstration of a tunnituous magnificence that would stir the heart of an emperor leaves him absolutely numoved. In private, whether it come from interested flattery or the exhuberance of affection, all allusions to himself seem to drive him off into doar revery. He seems quite free from personal animosities; can listen to the most violent indictinent unchanged, and when he passes out of the house appears to forget all about it. When Forster gots up to make his attack everybody can see the coarse pugilist waving his bindgeon with the zest and the zvid passion of a carrivorous animal; but Parnell opposite—I have to speak somowhat funcifolly in order to convey my impressions—appears, as it were, to diesolve into thin air, and to become as invulnerable as phantoms from shadow land.

I know how to manage my own private business, seven hundred and five horses were wrongfaily taken from me and my pecule. They were taken by Gen. Cook, in ING, when I was at peace. I want pay for them. I am a man a mone—ugh! Secretary Teller says: "Pay too in cows! Me want to nows (smiles). Let sitting Bull have cows (smiles). When I get all the cows promised already by the government I will have all the cows! want. I need money, I am in debt. I must take care of mynoney. I am in debt. I must take care of my-self and family. I ask the great law chiefs, and especially the friends of people, Sanset, to pay me for my horses in money. This is sense—ugh! Look at me!"

Longevity of Wild Animals.

Demorest's Monthly. Two hippopotamuses have recently died in the London Zoological garden. One was wenty-seven years in confinement, the other thirty, but, of course, their actual age can never be known. Indeed, it is difficult to tell thether the wild animal lives as long as the whether the wild animal lives as long as the domestic one. At one time the test was the length of time required to reach maturity, which, it was assumed, bore a certain proportion to the life of the creature. But this does not hold good with oven the larger mammalia, for a horse, assuming it to be, mature as four years, will live to five or six "maturities," while man, presuming him to be mature at twenty, rarely reaches four. Dogs only a greater longevity than mankind, and a car's life is proverbially tenacious. It cannot be proved that even wild animals have their lives shortened by confluement. Indeed, it is rea-proved that even wild animals have their lives shortened by confinement. Indeed, it is reasonable to suppose that the care given to animals in menageries prolongs their existence. The civilized man certainly lives longer than the savage, who is exposed to the hardships and vicissitudes of a rough out door existence. They Must Have It.

DECAMUR Democrats appear to be entirely lacking in nerve, since the beating they got last fall.

THE election in Cincinnati yesterday was closely contested, and though the returns are not all in it is probable that the Democrats have elected the mayor and the Republicans the comptroller. In Columbus and it was vaguely whispered then the Republicans won a decisive vic-

Springfield to day are arousing general interest in all parts of the state. In both cities the conditions are much the same: a Democratic ticket supported by the slums, and a citizens' ticket brought out by the better elements of both parties. The turning point in both cities seems to be upon the position that the re speciable portion of the Democratic to rise above party demands and vote: for candidates who represent the decent portion of the people, it will not be difficult to defeat the sandbaggers in Springfield. Two more trials followed, in both of which the jury failed to condition that his sentence be imprisonment for a period not louger than ten years. Under this plea, however, he was sentenced to imprisonment for twenty-five years. He again appealed, and the judgment of the lower court was reversed, by the supreme court, and the cause for a second time remanded. Upon his next trial, the prisoner refused to withdraw his pleas of guilty of murder in the second degree, or to make another plea, whereupon the court ordered a plea of not guilty to be en-tered for him, and be was again tried for murder in the first degree, found guilty and sentenced to death. He appealed successively to the Court of Appeals and to the Supreme Court of the state. In both of these tribunals the sentence of the court below was affirmed. The sentence was then ordered to be executed on August 24, 1882, but before that time, Judge Miller, of the United States Supreme Court, grant ed a writ of error, and the case was brought here for a final review. Under the constitution and laws of the state of Missouri, at the time the offense was committed and indictment found, the prisoner could not be tried for murder in the first degree, for he had been convicted and pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, but under the constitution of court of Missonri, one indicted for ever been seen in this country. Chief Justice Weite and Justices Bradley, Gray and Mathews dissented. This decision, rendered by a bare majority of one, finally relieves the prisoner from the sentence of death, which has been banging over him for the past seven years.

Is the White House Haunted.

"Yes, this building is haunted," said an attache of the Presidential Mansion to the Critic this morning, "and it is said that supernatural sights are not unfrequently witnessed in these large, old-fashioned rooms and airy halls. Several weeks ago the President changed the location of his bedchamber by removing from the Last to the North Room, that his alumbers had been disturbed by a necturnal and weird visitor, the same that one of our chamber-Tm city of Jacksonville, which maids said she had seen walking stately and erect through the upstairs hallways on several occasions. "Yes, the ghostly visitor is a man," continued the attache, "because I remember well of hearing the chambermaid say that he had long, flowing white hair and beard and very much resembled the statesmen of long ago, whose pictures we see printed on the pages of history. At any rate, sir, I know that the President's rest is of-Ten elections in Chicago and ten disturbed at night, because I have heard him time and time again moving about long after midnight and sometimes I have listened to his steady and continued pacing across the floor when every one else in the house was slumbering, and wondered suggested the Critic. "Oh, ro," quickly rejoined the at tache, "reither of them, I'm sure. party will take. If they are willing It was the White House ghost, and I'll bet on it. This ghost is the same one that made Gen. Concluding, the Presidential individual left to an-

Looking for the Savages.

Santa Fe, N. M., April 3.—Governor Sheldon left last evening for the south to investigate in person the condition of Indian depredations. No news from the troops in the field has yet been received. Col. Forsythe, Maj, Noves and Captain Thoupson, with their troops, are still in pursuit. So is Capt. Black, with a company of territorial volunteers. Fifty carbines and live thousand rounds of atomunition were sent yes relay to Shakspeare for use of the citizens. Lieut. Col Forsyth reports that he is scouting the country south of Anninas Mountains, and between Cottonwood and Wahmt. Springs. The hostiles captured a wagon with supplies and some horses on Saturday last, but the ranches escaped. He has forteen days' rations and will keep on scouting. There are about thirty hostiles well mounted, with some loose animals. The Indians have been hard pushed, and had to abandon some ten horses, and had no time for depredations. No further depredations reported. Looking for the Savages.

Starke and wife were at the Union Depot in this city waiting for a train, Mrs. Starke was groossly insulted by a negro hoodlum. The hosband in his attempt to resent the insult drew his plstof and snapped it twice at the culprit, but neigher cartridge would explode, or the brute's just deserts would have been meted out to him then and there. Great excitement prevalled, as the negro belonged to a gang of loafers and rowdies who infest the locality of the depot, and are in the habit of offering indignities to unprotected females. The offender was finally collated by an officer and marched to jail.

The Bloody Knife. INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 3.—Yesterday afternoon Morris Daiton, a railroader, used a knife on William S. Johnsan with serious effect. The affray grew out of an invasion of Johnson's home and an insult to his family. After the enting Daiton attempted to escape, but was captured after a stubborn resistance and locked ap a tempted murder.

GILDED NICKLES. Secret Service Officers on the Alert to:

Counterfeiters. WASHINGTON, April 3.—The trouble over the new nickel is not yet at an end. From reports received at the Treasury the gilding and passing of this counterfeil gold is growing more general every day. A prominent secret service officer said that arrests of parties had been made in California, St. Louis, Plusburg, Louislana, Chicago, Nashville, New York, Roston, Kansas City, Jubbuque and other places. Complaints are being received every day from all parts of the country. Some district attorneys are in doubt as to the law in such cases, but several have already found indictments against the guilty parties.

"No, not materially. The ignorant and many intelligent persons will still accept them as $5 pleces, as the reverse of the piece is very similar to the gold coin."

Another Treasury official said the nickel pieces were a grave mistake, and that they should never have been made. "Why," he said, "Men are paying a premium for them, and the records of the secret service will show their purpose in doing this. They were designed to perpetuate somehody's memory, and they will do it. The penitentiary will soon be full of living monuments to the greatness of these inventors."

A Young Clerk Shot by His Room-mate-

A Woman in the Case.

ST. LOUIS, April 3.—At half-past one o'clock this morning, a clerk employed at Leubrie's store on Franklin avenue, was shot twice through the head and instantly killed by Albert Wing, a young commercial man from Owensboro, Ky. The killing was witnessed by Essie Davis, a beautiful young woman whose home is at Greenville, Ky. The shooting occurred at No. 1125 Pine street, the house of Mrs. Preityman whose husband was murdered hard by there about two years ago.

The young woman is of respectable and well to-do parents, but she has been wayward for some time, and on three occasions ran away from home with Wing, being each time persuaded to return to her home. On Saturday evening she arrived here with him and went to the house of Mattie Roberts, No. 103 North Tenth street, where she formed the acquaintance of young Glean, who frequented there. Yesterday Glem rented the back parlor of Mrs. Prettyman and last night he and Wing took possession of it. They went out and about 1 o'clock this morning they returned with the young woman. They went out and about 1 o'clock this morning they returned with the young woman. Half an hour later two pistol shots aroused the household, and the inmates, who rushed down stairs, saw Wing making his escape, while the woman was seen standing in the lighted room by the body of Glenn, who was already dead. Wing met a reporter and asked a question which aroused suspicion and led the reporter to send the police after him, effecting his capture. The woman is also locked up.

Senator Cameron's Health Restored.

Washington, April 3.—Senator J.
D. Cameron left for Harrisburg yesterday.
He will remain there about a week. He will return to this city. Senator Cameron said he never felt better in his life, and his general appearance bears out the statement and will put an end to the gossip about his failing health. The Senator will remain here on his return until some time in May,
as this climate is more satisfactory to him
than any other at this season of the year, a ter which he will taken a trip to Europe. Senator Cameron's Health Restored.

Rail Mills Closed.

MRS. CHRISTINE SODEOSTROM, 262 W.

New York, April 3.—The Tribune contains the following: As the pring season advances it becomes more apparent that the country is experiencing a revival in business, which promises results to financial and industrial interests during 1883 similar to those attained during the phenomenal year 1890. A solid basis sirready exists on which to build this expected improvement. The great harvests of 1882 in this country and the partial failure of the crops in Europe have made this secure. The United States has a ready market for their domestic products. The excess of our exports over our imports amounts to $88,565,133 for the first eight months of the current fiscal year 1882-183. This means that the great agricultural sections of the West and South have added to their wealth enormously, and will have an abundance of money to purchase of the necessaries and inxuries of life, thus insuring a prolonged season of activity to the manufacturing and other leading interests of the East. The marketing of last year's crop is still going on, and for several months to come the exports of domestic product will probably show a heavy incense as compared with the movement of last year. The railroads are profiting by this state of affairs, and in many sections of the country the earnings of roads are without precedent. There is every reason to look for a continuance of large traffic. The preparations to meet an increased trade are active through the West and South. The fact that railroads are prospering is sufficient to insure confidence in many branches of industry. The crop prospects for the current year are looming up as a leading topic of discussion in financial circles. The accounts from abroad as to the outlook for the crops in Europe render it most certain that not only Great Britain, but the Continent, will be greatly dependent on the United States for foodjauple is during thy year, and the first six months of 1844. Some apprehensions which existed concerning winter wheat in California have heen allayed by the advices of recent

Rampant Red-Skins.

Washington, April 2.—Secretary Teller received the following telegram from agent Wilcox at Sau Carlos, Arizona: "The Indians at the Ageucy were greatly excited Sunday night by the reported presence of one or more Chiracahuas on the reservation. At 3 o'clock this morning, Lieut. Daris with 160 secouts and friendly Indians passed up the Sau Carlos River, thirteen miles to the camp of Nadaski, chief of the White Mountain Indians, where they found a buck named Pench, who went out with Pecos' band of Chiracahuas on April 19, last. Nadaski and Peach were brought in and the former was tried and ordered to Camp Thomas to be tried and placed in irons with the recommendation that he be sent to the Dry Tortugas for life for harboring renegades, threatening to burn the agency, to kill employes, to go on the warpath with Chiracahuas and for endangering the peace of the reservation, Hoping to obtain information, Peach will be held there for three or four days. The Indians here will see to it that he does not escape. All are quiet. The conduct of the Indians here will sproves their loyality.

Small-Pox in St. Louis.

St. Louis. April 3.—Sanitary Officer O'Brien has been busy vaccinating residents in the neighborhood of the St. Peter and Paul's school, on Eighth street and Allen avenue, for two days past. The dread disease, small-pox, made its appearanceFin the locality of the school twelve days ago, and ahrendy it has attacked nearly two score of yietims, and every day the number is increased. Two more cases of small-pox on Defalls street were reported to the Health Office. They will be suffered to remain at their homes, but the houses have been posted.

The health officers state that the demand for vaccine virus by physicians is larger than they are at present able to supply. Small-Pox in St. Louis.

A Man Who Had a Bad Body but Good

New York, April 3.—A peculiur suit was tried here yesterday, in which a stal-wart long-shorement claimed $50 damages from J. A. Q. Ward, the sculptor, for non-fulfillment of contract. Ward wanted a glant as a model for a statute of Washington and Burns, the long-shoreman, was selected, at $15 a week, and he was to have four or five months' work. He stayed with Ward three or four days only, and then came this suit. Burns was asked in court what reason Ward gave for discharging him. The reply was: "He said that my legs were all right, but he would have to find another body." "Idon't know what pose is. Once in a while Ward would say, 'Burns, Sit up a little,' but a man couldn't stand on one leg all the time. At the end of tho week he gave me $250 and said I might go, and he guessed that would pay for my beer," Ward testified that the arrangement was that Burns should come on trial. He explained what a model should be, and said that this man's legs were first-rate, but he could not stand in proper position. He complaimed that it hurt his legs to stand in one position so long. He was of no use, and at the end of the week Mr. Ward let

N Placard on the Body to Warn Evil

Hoveron, Tex., April 3.—A special from Moscow states that yesterday morning the sun rose upon the body of an egro hanging suspended from a tree, who had suffered the penalty and vegenance of a justly incensed community for an attempt outrage a white woman. The facts are as follows: Some three weeks ago this fiend made an attempt upon the person of a white lady some distance from here, but was fortunately folicit. A few uights ago, having hired to a man on Jones' Prairie, he went to the house of a white tenant on the same place and made two similar efforts within one hour, again failing in each. Sunday morning he had the hardthood to enter Moscow, and was instantly arrested and placed in jail. At night a party of disguised men took him out of jail, and, after he had made a full confession, hung him to a tree hard by, and placed a placard upon his breast? 'Hung as a warning to those who seem utterly unable to comprehend the helmousness of such a crime, or to profit by the sure and swift justice which rarely fails to overtake such attempts.'

New Military Taotics of the K. of P. New Military Taotics of the K. of P. IDMANAPOLIS, Ind., April 2.—Adjutant General Carnahan, to whom the supremelodge of the Knights of Pythias assigned the work of preparing military tactles for the use of the uniform rank, has completed his labors, and the manuscript is now in the hands of the printer. The movements have been so arranged that a person who may become conversant with them will be qualified to serve in the army, so that the knowledge acquired will be useful as well as consmental. The movements are ossed upon the Upton that the knowledge acquired will be useful as well as ornamental. The movements are oased upon the Upton principle of fours instead of threes, as is the case in the uniform ranks of other orders. There are as many as eighty fancy movements arranged so that the drill can be made exceedingly attractive. The uniform rank of the order is divided into divisions, grand divisions and brigrades—the division representing a single lodge, the grand division, the lodge of the State, and the brigade the uniform rank of the entire order. The uniform will be a blue-black suit, and the insigma of the officers will be similar to that of the regular army, except as to emblems.

Dubuque, Io., April 3.—The city election yesterday passed off quietly. A large vote was polled. O'Donnell, Democrat, is elected Mayor by several hundred majority. The Republicans elect three out of five Aldermen by small majorities. The balance of the Democratic ticket is probably all elected. The Republicans have made considerable gains over two previous elections. The liquor question contributed indirectly to the defeat of the Republicans.

Galveston, Tex., April 3.—Charles W. Francis, ex-Health Commissioner of St. Louis, who had a scandalous escapade with Miss Ida Simpson in Chicago, the particulars of which were given out in Associated Press dispatches from St. Louis Saturday night, arrived here yesterday by the steamer Whitney, from Morgan City to Vera Cruz, Mexico. He was booked on the steamer's passenger list as Charles Miller. While the Whitney was lying here receiving freight and passengers, Francis, alias Miller, came ashore, and in walking along the strand was recognized by a business man, who was formerly engaged in mercantle pursuits in St. Louis, and prominent in politics as well, who was much surprised to see Francis here.

Knowing that the local election came off in St. Louis to day, he expressed his surprise and said to Francis, "W hy, what are you doing away from St. Louis when your election comes off to-morrow?" Francis replied that his election was assured whether he was at home or not and that he had been suddenly called away from St. Louis to look after some important mining interests in Mexico, and remarked that as the time was about up when the steamer was to sail he would go abourd. His Galveston friend offered to accompany aim aboard the steamer, when Francis peremptorily declined his company and suddenly left him. The man's strange actions aroused the suspicions of his friend, and that something was wrong was afferwards ascertained by a telegram received here injuring if Charles W. Francis Health Commissioner, had sailed from here in the Whitney for Vera Cruz, and if an officer had arrived in Galveston from St. Louis, or the police authorities had been notified to arrest him, and if arrested the nature of the charge. Inquiry elicited the fact that no officer had arrived nor land the police received any authority to apprehend him, but that Francis had sailed on the Whitney for Vera Cruz at I o'clock yesterday. the Iron Moundain Railway, due here at 6:17 vesterday, struck a rock of several tons in weight that had rolled down on the track at Bushburg, a small station twenty-five miles from the city. The engine, No. 348, left the track and rolled down the embankment into the river, where she now lays, bottom side up. The baggage car was thrown off its trucks and landed across the track. The front end of the smoker was also untracked and thrown to the side of the track, but none of the coaches or sleepers left the rails. Engineer McGovern and his ireman were both seriously injured in jumping from the engine, but just how badly could not be learned. None of the passengers were hurt at all, saide from a most complete shaking-up, caused by the sudden stopping of the train. The track was cleared at 10 o'clock, and all the Iron Mountain trains overdue got into the Union Depot at one o'clock.

The Prohibition Amendment in Iowa-The Prohibition Amendment in Iowa-Davenport. Io., April 3.—The Supreme Court of lown convenes in this city to-day for a very important term, the principal business being a rehearing of the Davenport or amendment case. It is understood that all the arguments touching upon the validity of the prohibitory amendment to the State Constitution, adopted by popular vots on June last, will be gone over. The case, it will be remembered, was decided by the Supreme Court first at the January term, and against the validity of the amendment. In view of the great interest centering in the case arrangements have been made to hold this term of Court in a public hall. The judges of the Supreme Court arrived in the city by last night's trains.

THE TOWN ELECTION. Light Vote Polled-Little Interest

Taken in the "Contest."

The quietest township election on record is taking place to-day in Decatur. The Republicans appear to be having a walk over, as there is no organized opposition of any character except for collector, and naturally the grand army of "workers" have the doleful dumps, as their occupation is gone. They stood around for awhile this morning hoping to be employed, but finding no bids for their "influence" they soon disappeared. The candidates and a few of their personal polls, except the occasional appearance

Votes cast, 109. Total number of votes cast up to 2 p. Only a light vote was polled up to 2 o'clock in 1882. The total at that hour a year ago was only 631. Whole number of votes cast in 1882, about 1650. THE "OPPOSITION."

The democrats seem to be completely demoralized this year, or else the itch for office in the ranks of the Bourbons has could be given in 60 days from date of gone glimmering. 'Tis just as well. There is no hope for the dems, in Decatur township, anyhow, and it is gratifying to see them lay down gracefully and throw up the sponge. And yet it would have been more interesting had Farmer Jack and the other members of the unterrified shown nerve enough to bring out a ticket of some sort. Had the ticket come out as late as this morning it would have occasioned no surprise, and would have been recognized as opposed to the Republican nominces by its head. But such was not the case. The democrats have weakened and appear to take no part in the selection of township officers. Their inactivity may be taken as an admission that they have no organization or strength and that they could not by any sort of persuasion induce any member of the party to allow his name to go on a mixed ticket headed by any name-"Citizens," "People's" or "General." The only opposing candidate for any office on the
